Steven Allen	I do not consent to this change. <ul style="list-style-type: none">- Market garden and pasture fires are cooler, lower risk and easier to control than forestry and parks.- Most people who live rural have their own firefighting equipment.- People who are rural are the actual volunteer firefighters.- Forestry plantations and National Parks with their associated fuel load are substantially higher risk and harder to put out. In fact the fuel load in the plantations around us are our biggest concern. I can supply photos if required.- I do not understand the need for the change in how the levies are determined.
